

The new year is already speeding away and half term is almost upon us! Here at MyDaughter we've had an exciting start to 2011 with the publication of our first book Your Daughter—find out more below....

Expert guidance on education for girls

What's new on MyDaughter?

Your Daughter

A guide for raising girls

"I've got three daughters. This is a brilliant book." Jamie Oliver

Have you ever wondered why:

- your daughter spends all day with her friends but still needs to talk to them all evening?
- she moans about wearing school uniform, then goes out dressed exactly the same as all the other girls?

We are delighted to announce that Your Daughter - A guide for raising girls is now available from all good booksellers. It is filled with practical advice and expertise from the MyDaughter website in an easy to read format, and aims to help parents negotiate the many challenges of raising daughters in the 21st century.

Order your copy today...

In the MyDaughter blog we have been looking at some educational hot topics such as the introduction of the English Baccalaureate asking Are some subjects more equal than others? Also, we've been discussing The importance of music \(and 'Glee'\) in schools and on the technology side—are e-books already taking over from paper ones in schools? School libraries RIP? The debate begins...

Once again you've been raising parenting issues that will be familiar to many households with growing girls: how should you react when your daughter tries to ban you from entering her room? Find out in My daughter wants more privacy, while coping with changing behaviour is tackled in My daughter's boyfriend is a bad influence on her. Also, the increasingly common cause of parent-daughter conflict: My daughter and I are fighting about her mobile phone habits!

If you've got a parenting question and are looking for advice why not Ask us a question...

GAP YEAR EXPERIENCES

Keen for your daughter to gain some invaluable life experience and boost her CV in this competitive market for university places and jobs? Whether it is for 1 week or 2 years, travel with one of these top Gap Year providers, all part of TUI Travel PLC, and put your mind at rest!